ACTIVE SEATING SOLUTIONS

Time to revolutionise the way we sit

We spend a large part of our day sitting still, whether at work, while commuting or while watching TV. Sitting in one position for hours can load the spine and cause muscle fatigue, leading to a range of lifestyle diseases. While we may spend some time of our day working out to reverse the effects of sedentary sitting, we can now also take a small step towards preventing these take effects - by simply switching to Active Seating.

Usage Guide

To get the best use out of these products:

- Users should get the feel of the products first and see a demo to understand its application. It may take them a while to adapt to the dynamic features
- Keep the feet grounded to ensure body balance while using the poufs. When seated, lean only as much as your body can balance comfortably
- Place the product in upright position, ensuring that only the intended surface is used as base (as depicted in catalogue)
- Use the products for their intended use – sitting at work. Avoid misuse such as using it as a toy, ladder and café chair
- Users with any serious injuries or physical disability should check with their respective EHS department personnel before usage
